"High Point" looks at Michaud's development as an educator and artist as she has made her mark in the field of ceramic arts. Curated by Natalia Kormeluk, the exhibit covers a broad time frame in Michaud's artistic career, including her undergraduate work in painting and printmaking; her thesis work in ceramics, with research on structural strength in the wheel-thrown form; and her teaching and professional career as a ceramic artist. Her journey has taken her across the globe to Aberystwyth, Wales, and Yixing, Jiangsu Province, China, where she presented her research and taught workshops. Her work is found in collections worldwide. It is at Hood, though, where students experienced her passion and tenacity in building the ceramics program that impacted many and created a touchstone, or standard of excellence, in the field of ceramic arts.

Encouraging Maryland writers, poets, playwrights, and authors for 30 years

Maryland Author: Alice McGill

Genre: Children's Literature

"For me, writing is an expedition through life experiences."

Alice McGill

Alice McGill was born in the small rural town of Scotland Neck, North Carolina. She attended a four-room school with her seven brothers and sisters. Her parents were avid readers and storytellers, her father being the best. He read aloud from the News and Observer Newspaper and Time Magazine or listened to his children read from books borrowed from school. In the fourth grade, McGill read her first thick book. It was The Five Little Peppers and How They Grew. The characters, Polly, Ben, Davie, and Phronsie remained her favorite book characters for years. As a result, she developed an interest in storytelling, poetry, and oratorical contests. McGill won a four-year scholarship to Elizabeth City State Teacher's College. She earned a degree in elementary education and taught school for almost eighteen years before becoming a full-time, traveling storyteller. One of her most well-known storytelling performances re-creates the life of Sojourner Truth; the story is based on Truth's own writings on abolition, women's rights, motherhood and other topics. Travelling has taken her to 41 states, Canada, the West Indies, and South Africa.

In 1999, McGill turned Molly Bannaky, one of her favorite stories, into a book. Molly Bannaky became an American Library Association Notable Book as well as the winner of the 2000 IRA Picture Book Award and the 2000 Jane Addams Award. Its success encouraged her to write down other stories for children and their parents to enjoy. Her books usually have African American protagonists or deal with African American issues.

McGill is married and lives in Columbia, Maryland.

Genre: Children's Literature: Children's literature or juvenile literature includes stories, books, magazines, and poems made for children. Modern children's literature is classified in two different ways: genre or the intended age of the reader. McGill writes for ages 7-12

A reading list includes: The Griots' Cookbook, Molly Bannaky, Miles' Song, Sure As Sunrise: Stories of Bruh Rabbit and his Walkin' Talkin' Friends, In the Hollow of Your Hand: Slave Lullabies, and Here We Go Round. Audio Recordings: Flying Africans (Earwig Music)

Fun With Words - Maryland Writers' Association (MWA) invites you to have fun writing children's literature for ages 7-12 using up to 100 words. Select a protagonist that mirrors your race or cultural group and write about an issue involving your race or cultural group. Submit your Fun With Words response to https://marylandwriters.org/Notable_Maryland_Authors by the 20th of the month and receive an MWA Fun With Words submission certificate. Selected responses will be published with next month's article.

The MWA is a 31-year old state-wide association (501c3) dedicated to encouraging and mentoring Maryland writers, poets, playwrights, and authors. Go to www.MarylandWriters.org for more information. MWA's membership ranges from those who write as a creative outlet to professional freelancers and published authors with writers aspiring to be published in the middle. In January 2020, MWA membership exceeded 700, a 300% growth from 225 members in 2016.

The MWA's annual writers' conference, From Brain to Bookshelf, is scheduled for March 28-29 at the College Park Marriott Hotel & Conference Center on the University of Maryland College Park Campus. Janet Friedman, the former publisher of Writers' Digest is the Keynote speaker. Go to www.MarylandWriters.org for more information.

For Immediate Release:

Jim Brewster – Communications Chair MWA - Communications@MarylandWriters.org, - 202-557-8097

From Brain To Bookshelf 2020 writers conference set for March 28-29, 2020

The Maryland Writers' Association announced that Janet Friedman, the former publisher of Writer's Digest, is the keynote speaker and presenter for their "From Brain To Bookshelf" annual writers conference being held March 28-29 at the College Park Marriott Hotel & Conference Center in College Park Maryland. Jane is the former publisher of Writer's Digest, a Great Courses professor, and an author with the University of Chicago Press. Jane will present insider sessions on both Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday: Today's Key Book Publishing Paths: What's New, What's Old, and What's Right for You? Jane discusses, in plain English, everything you need to know about how book publishing operates today so you will understand the pros and cons of every major publishing path available.
Sunday: The Art & Business of Author Platform. Platform building requires consistent, ongoing effort over the course of a career; the work is never really done, and your strategy will evolve over time. She'll discuss how to develop an approach and philosophy that fits your personality and the unique qualities of your work.

The two-day conference also offers writers the chance to improve their craft and pitch their projects through Workshops, Panels, and Agent Pitch Opportunities. Each day, writing and publishing experts will lead workshops on various aspects of writing and publishing. Industry panels with agents and insiders will give you the latest lowdown on getting an agent and being signed by a publisher.

Agents will be on site both Saturday and Sunday to hear book pitches, provide critiques, and participate in industry panels. Check out agent profiles at the MWA website to find agents who are looking for your genre and style of work. Pitch and critique session slots are limited and available first come, first served.

- Agent Pitch: $20.00 each (first pitch free for MWA members) - pitch your submission-ready manuscript to agents
- Critique with Agent: $60.00 each for critique of first 10 pages of your work in progress (after you sign up, we'll send information about how to submit your 10 pages ahead of the conference; you'll meet with the agent at the conference to receive feedback on your work)

The College Park Marriott Hotel & Conference Center is in College Park Maryland on the University of Maryland College Park Campus, at 3501 University Blvd East, Hyattsville, Maryland 20783. The Conference Center is 1.8 miles from the College Park Metro Station (long walk or short Uber).

Ice: cold, hard, silent, hidden, dark, slow-moving. Fire: one of elemental powers, hot, crackling, smoldering or fast moving. Artists have been fascinated with the metaphor and allegory of these two elements. Robert Frost wrote a poem about them, Dante invoked them in the Inferno. Join us at NOMA gallery for Fire & Ice.

Virginia Sperry & Jim Roberts "Occupied Space"

March 6-29, 2020

Opening Reception: Sat, March 7, 5-9pm

Artists' Talk: Thurs, March 19, 7-8:30pm

NOMA's March exhibition showcases the installation work of Virginia Sperry and Jim Roberts. The show, titled occupied space, will feature two separate installations, one by each artist.

Sperry's installation, Filament, takes a common material to a new level of experience.

From the detailed, abstract photography of tiny pieces of yarn to the bigger than life waterfalls made from strands of yarn hanging from the ceiling, this installation challenges the viewer's preconceptions of this medium.

Roberts' installation delves into the current political milieu with his work, anatomy of a lie.

Showing the various stages of how a lie can take form and spread, the piece is a 3-dimensional illustration of the attacking and discrediting of factual information by laying siege to the 4th estate.
