Upcoming FAC Exhibit: Infinite Growth

The power to demand how the world must change, form, improve, and grow in order to create a better existence is central to the artwork on view in Infinite Growth at FAC Art Center. In this exhibition featuring LGBTQ+ artists from Frederick and the mid-Atlantic region, artists respond to the idea of limitless change - understanding and embracing the emerging fluidity and perpetual transformation of the human experience. Curated by Jillian Abir MacMaster, the exhibition features the work of Asher Burrows, Mentwab Easwaran, Jamie Gerhold, Ashley Hoffman, Marz Jackson, Molly Marie Nuzzo, Brooklyn Rando, Charlotte Richardson-Deppe, and Becca Schwartz to consider how growth is cultivated, nurtured, and experienced.

The exhibition opening will feature a curatorial statement from MacMaster as well as a performance by musical guest Flo Petite beginning at 6:00 p.m.

The exhibition will be on view at the FAC Art Center May 4th, 2022- August 12th., 2022.

Author: Gayle Danley

Genre: Slam Poetry

"With enough passion and practice, becoming a slam poet is within your reach." – Gayle Danley

Gayle Danley is a championship poet and grief writer. She earned a Bachelor's of Art degree from Howard University, a Masters of Science from Syracuse University, and lives in Silver Spring, MD.

Her core belief is that while grief is unavoidable, grieving alone is not. She is a fierce advocate that poetry, especially Slam Poetry, is a highly effective medium to help children grieve because it gives kids who have pain in their hearts a tool for release...". Gayle herself "has turned her pain and joy, courage and optimism into pages and pages of slam poetry that she shares onstage and in the classroom." Grieving includes any loss such as having an unrealized dream, betrayal by a friend, seeing/experiencing injustice, and death of a loved one. She has made inroads in middle school language programs, helping students craft poetry that addresses such topics as bullying, divorce, family tragedy, gangs, and peer pressure. Her work with children who have suffered loss has been featured in a TedEd talk, on CBS 60 Minutes, and in articles in The Washington Post, The Baltimore Sun and The New York Times.

The Washington Post praises her work: "Gayle Danley has been earning acclaim with the power of her words for almost 15 years. She performs poetry and teaches it to children all over Maryland, inspiring almost everyone who hears her with her frank personal revelations and her ability to coax cathartic self-expression out of some of the most unlikely students."

Gayle Danley is one of the nation's most sought after inspirational writers and speakers on the topics of the power of performance poetry, healing from grief, and honoring those whose life work is serving others. Gayle uses this national platform to say "let's stop pretending we aren't hurting. Let's truly reach out to one another and walk the difficult path of loss step by step, together." Her Grief Friend website is an on and off line resource for people who are moving through the experience of losing a loved one.

Gayle's, TEDEd Talk, "Ms. Gayle's 5 Steps to Slam" explains in 3 minutes the 5 steps to becoming a Slam Poet: 1) Write it all down, 2) Read it Out Loud, 3 Cut the Fat, 4) Read it out loud again, 5) Add Flava. See the clip at <https://ed.ted.com/lessons/become-a-slam-poet-in-five-steps-gayle-danley>.

Her honors and awards include: 2018 Maryland Library Association (MLA) William G. Wilson Maryland Author Award; Young Audiences of Maryland's National Artist of the Year, MLA Poet of the Year. Ms. Danley is on the Kennedy Center's roster of master teaching artists providing high level arts integration workshops for language arts educators, is an Artist in Residence with the Maryland State Arts Council, and performed at the 2018 American Library Association Conference. www.GayleDanleypoet.com

Light in the Darkness Janet Seifert

Most of the paintings in this exhibit were created during the 2020 pandemic. My concept was to create images using luminous light as a metaphor for the hope, strength and resilience needed to shine through such a dark time in our lives.

Using the Renaissance painting technique known as "chiaroscuro," forms are defined by diffused but radiant light from the depths of the background. The illumination emanates from an unseen mysterious source, creating an ethereal, otherworldly quality and revealing images that are seemingly discernible yet not quite definable.

The idea for the paintings first evolved while experimenting with digital, closeup snapshots of tiny holiday lights and sunlit-infused objects. Using the photos as inspiration and a point of departure, I refined them into painted images. My hope was to create serene, luminous moments frozen in time.

MARIE RICCIO'S oil paintings invite you into a quiet space of subtle color adjacent to bold color choices. In this series, she became intrigued by the properties of tissue paper. Despite its translucent nature, these papers obscure other elements, often with an unexpected visual weight. Throughout the series, tissue papers are a common thread, guiding the work as they obscure and reveal.

Harriet Wise celebrates three-quarters of a century in Frederick teaching art and recording life through her photography. Her solo show at NOMA gallery in May, "Rediscovering Harriet," is a collection of her favorite photos taken over many years: the earliest is from 1949, the latest was taken recently.

Harriet is interested in a diverse range of subject matters, but all of her work revolves around light and shadow. "Light gives body and shape to the subject," she says. "You can plan a photo or you can 'find' a photo. Both are fine, but finding has more possibilities for surprise." Many of the photographs in the show are "found," photographed, and loved by many.
